Copyright Transfer Agreement

1. I (We) (the “Author[s]”) hereby confirm that the article is original and does not infringe the copyright of other articles, criticize, or violate privacy, and agree that the Korean Journal of Hospice and Palliative Care shall be protected from any material or reputational damage.

2. Author[s] have made practical and intellectual contributions in changing or improving important parts of the manuscript or in writing the manuscript in addition to performing analysis and interpretation of data, designing structure of the study, and establishing basic concepts, and shall share public responsibility with regard to the content of the manuscript.

3. The article has not been previously published and is not scheduled or planned to be submitted to other academic journals.

4. Author[s] transfer to the Korean Society for Hospice and Palliative Care (KSHPC) the exercise of all rights regarding rights and benefits including a copyright of the article if the article is published in the KSHPC. This means that Authors[s] must obtain written permission from the KSHPC if Author[s] should use the data of their article in other journals after its publication, and shall indicate the source article where such data are originally presented. In addition, Author[s] fully understand that they retain all the rights, other than the copyright, of using all of the article or part thereof in writing other articles or patent application.
